Programme Overview

Film and Screen studies is one of four undergraduate degree programmes which together form the corpus of Film and Media based curricula at Bath Spa University. Based in the Bath School of Art, Film and Media, the programme seeks to create graduates with an informed, critical and creative approach to film and screen media, and their role in contemporary society and culture.

The first year of study introduces students to the histories and theories of film and television. Students are encouraged to watch, analyse and debate during these sessions, which are structured to create a nuanced understanding of the technological and narrative possibilities of film and screen media.

In the second year, students are encouraged to engage with key debates on film and screen studies, e.g. spectatorship, stardom, and their relationship with broader cultural questions, such as gender, race and ideology. Modules focus on key movements in American, European and Asian film cultures, with reference to their historical, cultural, political, economic and industrial contexts.

In the final year, students are encouraged to engage with specialised areas of study through a combination of taught and research based modules e.g. the dissertation, which is the core module for Level 6. Interdisciplinary approaches to film and screen studies is widely encouraged at this level, for example through modules on film and music, or film and video gaming.

Programme Aims

1. To provide a critical understanding of film and screen history, theory and criticism, and with an appreciation of its relationship with media and culture.
2. To provide a sound knowledge of the evolutionary changes in cinematic and electronic media and how television, video and digital arts continue to challenge cinema to adapt and invent/discover new forms of representation and communication.
3. To provide a developed understanding of the history of film and screen institutions, production, distribution and exhibition, and their relationship with society and culture.
4. To inculcate an ability to respond intellectually to the rapid changes and the global reach of film, television and new media industries.
5. To instil a nuanced and interdisciplinary awareness of reception and consumption practices in film and television, and the interactive practices of digital media within their institutional, economic and political contexts.
6. To instil advanced visual awareness, as demonstrated by the ability to analyse and interpret film images, and the production of written and visual projects based on an engagement with contemporary developments in film, media and visual culture.
7. To impart the skills and competencies that prepare them for a future career in the relevant sector and/or postgraduate study in Film and Screen Studies, or a cognate area, as well as skills for lifelong learning in this and associated subject areas.

Programme Intended Learning Outcomes (ILOs)

A Subject-Specific Skills and Knowledge

	Programme Intended Learning Outcomes (ILOs) On Achieving Level 6	On Achieving Level 5	On Achieving Level 4

Assessment methods

A range of summative assessment tasks will be used to test the Intended Learning Outcomes in each module. These are indicated in the attached assessment map which shows which tasks are used in which modules.

Students will be supported in their development towards summative assessment by appropriate formative exercises.

Please note: if you choose an optional module from outside this programme, you may be required to undertake a summative assessment task that does not appear in the assessment grid here in order to pass that module.

Work experience and placement opportunities

The course does not offer direct work experience or placement- based opportunities and students are encouraged to opt for the Level 5 Work Placement open module. The Level 5 Untold Stories: Screen Industries Project module is developed around industry interface and students create and research an aspect of industry, which requires them to work within their chosen sector. Guest sessions by industry professionals are held along with inputs from BSU's careers service to increase student employability in industry.

This programme can also be taken as a 'Sandwich' degree, which is studied over 4 years and includes a year-long work placement in a sector of your choice. The placement year is completed between years 2 and 3 of your degree and counts for 120 Level 5 credits. During this time you will be able to utilise knowledge gained as part of your studies in a real work environment to gain 'hands on' experience. The University has a dedicated Careers & Employability team to help you find and prepare for a placement. Following your placement year, you will return to University to complete your final year of study.

Graduate Attributes

	Bath Spa Graduates...	In Film and Media we enable this...
1	Will be employable: equipped with the skills necessary to flourish in the global workplace, able to work in and lead teams	Employability is embedded in the delivery and assessment of the course. The involvement of industry professionals as guest speakers and/or as leaders of projects is an integral part of course delivery. There is significant emphasis on industry interface, especially in Level 5 and 6 modules. In addition, students are also directed to appropriate employability related open modules.
2	Will be able to understand and manage complexity, diversity and change	Each level is characterised by a set of learning outcomes, which ensure progression in students' ability to manage issues of complexity, diversity and change. An awareness of these issues is embedded in course delivery. Assignments are designed at each level to assess students' ability to respond to increasingly advanced and complex learning experiences.
3	Will be creative: able to innovate and to solve problems by working across disciplines as professional or artistic practitioners	Specialist modules encourage students to develop original ideas into structured collaborative projects and problem-solving skills are an important part of these exercises. Interdisciplinarity is further facilitated by open modules.
4	Will be digitally literate: able to work at the interface of creativity and technology	Digital literacy is central to both theory and practice based modules. Core and optional modules require students to engage with digital skills of a high order as part of their learning experience, and to display high degrees of digital proficiency in their assignment submissions.
5	Will be internationally networked: either by studying abroad for part of the their programme, or studying alongside students from overseas	Erasmus and study abroad arrangements are in place and increasing numbers of students apply to study abroad every year. In recent years, overseas exchange students have been attending Film and Media courses in greater numbers, most often from USA, EU and Australia, and this significantly enriches the quality of peer learning in the classroom.
6	Will be creative thinkers, doers and makers	Creative thinking is encouraged as part of module delivery, both in theory and practice based modules. Seminars, workshops, activities and assessments are designed to facilitate learning by making, which involves participative and activity-based learning, both individually and in groups.
7	Will be critical thinkers: able to express their ideas in written and oral form, and possessing information literacy	The learning outcomes at every level emphasise the importance of critical and conceptual understanding of subject matter. The ability to communicate these ideas by using tools of critical analysis is an important part of the assessment in both core and optional modules.

8	Will be ethically aware: prepared for citizenship in a local, national and global context	Research ethics, as well as the ethics of film, media and digital platforms are an essential part of the delivery of core modules. The global nature of film, media and digital spaces is an integral part of course content across all three levels. This awareness is supplemented by open modules.
