Programme Overview

Criminology is the study of crime and victimisation and the responses to crime that come in the form of justice, law and punishment. Students of criminology explore the causes and motivations underlying criminal conduct and the social conditions and problems which are associated with criminality. The criminal justice system is also a key aspect of criminological studies and you will critically investigate and scrutinise the policies, processes and practices of law, criminal justice and punishment in this course.

As a field of study, criminology has developed with contributions from a range of disciplines including sociology, psychology, law, geography, media and literary studies, biology and history amongst others. This is reflected in the BSU Criminology programme which draws on expertise in a number of fields enabling you to look at the problem of crime from different angles. At the core of the programme is a suite of modules that will provide a foundational knowledge of the main theories, methods and debates criminology, provides an applied education in criminal justice and includes opportunities to undertake your own research into crime and justice. Criminological research has had an impact on public policy, but criminologists also have a responsibility to analyse and question forms of governance and social control. You will interrogate the balancing act that criminology plays between contributing to government policies that control and punish crime and critical exploration of them.

Programme Aims

- Equip you with conceptual, theoretical and methodological skills to analyse the problem of crime and victimisation in society
- Develop systematic knowledge and critical understanding of the institutions, practices, policies and processes relating to law, justice and punishment that emerge in response to crime at local, national and global levels and how these have developed over time
- Develop knowledge and critical understanding of the ethical, political, legal, socio-economic and cultural contexts that frame criminological investigation
- Help you become an informed, independent and reflective scholar through the development and application of practical research skills to the study of crime, victimisation and criminal justice
- Enhance transferable skills that you can take forward into employment including problem-solving, decision-making, digital literacy and written, verbal and visual communication

Assessment methods

A range of summative assessment tasks will be used to test the Intended Learning Outcomes in each module. These are indicated in the attached assessment map which shows which tasks are used in which modules.

You will be supported in their development towards summative assessment by appropriate formative exercises.

Please note: if you choose an optional module from outside this programme, you may be required to undertake a summative assessment task that does not appear in the assessment grid here in order to pass that module.

Work experience and placement opportunities

The subject team works with BSU Careers and Employability to provide links, training, support and opportunities for students. Whilst work experience and placements are not required elements of the programme, you are strongly recommended to take advantage of opportunities to apply your learning in the real world contexts of criminal justice. The programme has an emphasis on helping you develop practical and analytical skills that are relevant to working in this field. There are opportunities to learn GIS analytics and crime mapping (in Geotechnologies for Society and Environment), risk evaluation and management (in Criminal Justice: Theory, Policy and Practice), crime scene analysis (in Policing, Crime Control and Prevention), interviewing offenders and victims (in Criminal Justice: Theory, Policy and Practice) and scrutinise case studies (in Crime and Disorder in Everyday Life and Crime, Violence and Harm). Class activities and assessment with authentic and simulated components enable you to acquire technical and practical knowledge and skills relevant to the working environment of criminal justice including problem-solving, communication and project management skills. Many assessments are designed with 'authentic' components that enable you to apply your learning to situations, problems and tasks that would arise in working environments.

Specific modules with work experience opportunities include a 20 credit open module Work Placement at level 5. The programme provides support for you to obtain a placement in a relevant organisation that is attuned to your career goals. At level 6, the Community Engagement module combines a volunteering placement with a criminal justice organisation with study of the voluntary or 'third' sector. In both of these modules, placement hours can be undertaken flexibly in term or vacation time. Finally the module Unlocking Criminology available to Criminology students on Single Honours and Major awards, involves studying alongside prisoners in a local prison and provides students with experience and insight into carceral environments.

The programme can also be taken as a 'Sandwich' degree, which is studied over 4 years and includes a year-long work placement in a sector of your choice. The placement year is completed between years 2 and 3 of your degree and counts for 120 Level 5 credits. During this time, you will be able to utilise knowledge gained as part of your studies in a real work environment to gain 'hands on' experience. The University's Careers and Employability team help you find and prepare for a placement. Following your placement year, you will return to University to complete your final year of study.

Graduate Attributes

	Bath Spa Graduates...	In Criminology, we enable this...
1	Will be employable: equipped with the skills necessary to flourish in the global workplace, able to work in and lead teams	By providing opportunities for you to gain experience in policing and criminal justice and related environments. By reinforcing work experience and placement opportunities with simulated class exercises and authentic summative assessment tasks to develop knowledge and skills relevant to this field of practice.

2	Will be able to understand and manage complexity, diversity and change	By designing modules with learning activities and assessment for you to develop skills in critical thinking, problem-solving, flexible and adaptable working methods, organisation, time management and action planning.
3	Will be creative: able to innovate and to solve problems by working across disciplines as professional or artistic practitioners	By encouraging you in class and in assessments to take the initiative and develop original and innovative solutions to criminological problems and situations
4	Will be digitally literate: able to work at the interface of creativity and technology	By embedding development of ICT skills and digital literacy in your learning experience through use of a range of digital applications including specialist technologies.
5	Will be internationally networked: either by studying abroad for part of the their programme, or studying alongside students from overseas	By encouraging you to take advantage of opportunities on BSU Erasmus and International Exchange programmes to study abroad and by providing an internationalised curriculum that is cognisant of the global context of crime and criminal justice. By developing links with partner institutions abroad and with BSU Global to provide opportunities for international students to take criminology modules and share their perspectives on crime and justice with British students to enhance the classroom learning experience.
6	Will be creative thinkers, doers and makers	By providing opportunities for you to develop and use creative thinking and practical skills in all assessment items (and demonstrate that 'creativity' can be applied in social science contexts).
7	Will be critical thinkers: able to express their ideas in written and oral form, and possessing information literacy	By designing learning activities that prompt informed debate and discussion on key and contentious criminological issues and assessment items such as briefing papers, essays, reports and exams that require interpretation, analytic reasoning and balanced judgement.
8	Will be ethically aware: prepared for citizenship in a local, national and global context	By designing a syllabus that reflects the ethical and moral dimensions of human behaviour that is inherent in debates about crime and justice and locates this in local, national and global socio-legal contexts.
