Programme Overview

The MA Creative Producing programme is for those with a desire to work in, or currently working in, live performance. It is for producers at all stages of their career. New and early career producers learn and develop skills that enhance their creative vision, artistic judgement, business skills and acumen. Established producers develop, evaluate and reflect on their own practice and expand their artistic and market awareness by gaining insights into innovative artistic practices. The approach is multidisciplinary, but located in the live performance and does not include film or tv production.

The MA Creative Producing sits within the collaborative model embedded in the Music and Performance postgraduate community. You work with colleagues in levels 5, 6 and 7 and across a range of disciplines. Producers, directors, actors, and Shakespeare scholars work collaboratively. Throughout the programme, modules engender a company approach to the work, learning to function as a creative ensemble.

MA Creative Producing works within the Music and Performance production house, led by its Producer. This collaborative model allows you to contribute to a vibrant and diverse artistic community offering you networking opportunities that serve your business and creative practice. This represents the ideal teaching environment for creative producers. You can engage with productions generated across the School and use them as material for development. Equally, this enables greater enterprise activity for the performance-based courses. There is a virtuous circle to be completed.

All students on the MA Creative Producing programme become part of the School's producing team, working under the supervision of the School's Producer, a member of staff within the academic team. The Producer leads the postgraduate creative producing team creating a workplace environment that is a distinctive part of the programme's delivery. This creates a vibrant and diverse artistic community offering you networking opportunities that serve your future business and creative practice.

The programme offers opportunities for international students to explore new cultural markets and research perspectives in the UK. For UK students, programme content considers international perspectives on Shakespeare as well as opportunities to put that into practice. By broadening the international outreach of individual students, your work likewise broadens the international outreach of the School.

As with all of the Music and Performance Masters, this programme places you within a creative and vibrant artistic community dedicated to all aspects of music and the performing arts. Your programme therefore sits within a dynamic environment where we actively encourage you to work with other practitioners and scholars from other disciplines. You will also work with professional practitioners from a similar range of backgrounds who will bring differing perspectives to your work. You can also work with colleagues on the Bath Business School arts administration masters.

As well as teaching you how to produce, the programme also prepares you for a range of career opportunities in the arts. Including, but not limited community theatre, workshop leading, teaching, actors' agency and doctoral study.

Programme Aims

Throughout the course, the curriculum aims to:

1. Provide a creative environment that integrates acting, direction and production
2. Engender a collaborative approach to work appropriate to small-scale professional theatre
3. Foster a critical understanding of the creative production process
4. Detail the key phases of the process of developing a production from idea to realisation
5. Examine the relationship between the producer, the creative team and actors
6. Act as a catalyst for the development of live performance work.
